PROFILE OF DEGREE PROGRAMME

Marketing has gained enormous importance in recent years. Technological developments and complex future trends require a new, modern understanding of the marketing manager's role. Tech-savvy managers with an instinct for customers, markets and future developments are in demand.

The curriculum was developed with the support of leading companies to best prepare graduates for the labour market. Focal points of the degree programme include:

- Strong focus on quantitative subjects
- Digitalized business models and industry-specific transformation
- Major changes in dynamic markets

Students learn how to

- Analyse practical business cases and find feasible solutions
- Think internationally and across disciplines
- Apply the right methods and find empirical solutions

Building on the skills of the undergraduate degree, this three-semester Master's programme teaches advanced methods of marketing and economics.
